office whom Operative believed to be newspaper reporters. The two men then came out and entered the above mentioned automobile and drove away on Albany St. towards Highland Park.

At about 7.40 p.m. a tall, heavy-set man, of light complexion, blonde hair, and wearing a Gray mixture suit, came from the Western Union Telegraph office in company of two other men. He was carrying a dress suit case on which the initials "A.J.G." showed. The last named man proceeded to the railroad station and boarded the 7.55 p.m. train for New York.

Operative remained about the railroad station until 8.22 p.m. and then boarded the train and proceeded to the Smoker. While in the Smoker of the train Operative observed three men whom Operative believed were newspaper reporters. Operative could overhear their conversation, but did not hear them mention anything concerning the Hall-Mills Case. At this time it would seem that the general conversation was in regards to the 'Yanks' and Giants in the World Series.
